Any interesting facts or stories that might have been submitted.

From Lucy Walker Smith Kimball's autobiography, "Since 1845 I have been the wife of President Heber C. Kimball, by whom I have had eight children, four sons and four daughters. I have lived in the same house with other members of his family; have loved them as dearly as my own sisters, until it became necessary, as our children grew up around us, to have separate homes. Every mother has her own mode of government, and as children grow in years, it is more pleasant to have them under the immediate dictation of their own mother. I can truthfully state, however, that there is less room for jealousy where wives live under the same roof. They become interested in each other's welfare; they love each other's children; besides, in my experience, I find the children themselves love each other as dearly as the children of one mother."
